HOT WAVE MOVES EAST; DEATHS IN MIDWEST OVER 1450

Tremendous Damage Was Done To Crops By Record Heat

Chicago, July 3—(UP)—A toll of approximately 1,450 deaths was revealed by a United Press survey as one of the most punishing heat waves in recent years tightened its stifling grip on the eastern section of the nation.

In addition to the appalling loss of human life, the survey showed that crops were damaged to the extent of probably $10,000,000 by the heat. An indication of the widespread suffering caused by the hot spell was contained in reports that hundreds of persons were in hospitals after being prostrated.

Health authorities said the toll of deaths and damage may be increased greatly before the heat wave ends in the east. Most of the reports contained in today's survey were obtained from the mid-west, where cooling winds and thunderstorms have brought some relief.

More than 750 persons died after being prostrated from the heat during the past eight days, in which temperatures of 95 degrees and above were not unusual, the survey showed. An almost equal number of fatalities from drowning and diseases aggravated by the heat also were reported.

368 Chicagoans Dead

The most staggering loss of life was in Chicago, where 368 persons died of causes directly or indirectly attributable to the heat. Of that number, 83 died from the effects of remaining too long or exerting too strenuously in the scorching sunshine.

Other midwestern states and cities had fatality lists in proportion, considering their comparative populations. Among them were Wisconsin with 164 deaths, Iowa with 173, Missouri with 114 and Indiana with 65.

The heat wave was centered today in the Ohio Valley and over a vast section to the eastward. Indiana received the full force of the hot spell yesterday and 27 deaths were reported.

Lafayette, Ind., had a temperature of 103, the highest since August 5, 1918, and many recordings in the middle 90's or higher were made.

Agricultural experts said that the heat wave ultimately may result in additional millions of dollars damage to crops. In many districts, it was pointed out, the heat has dried out fields and pastures and unless rain is forthcoming soon drought conditions will prevail.

It was estimated that Nebraska farmers will lose $3,500,000 because of damage done to their crops. Several thousand farm families were reported in need of Red Cross aid in the Dakotas.

Although the heat wave generally was considered broken in the mid-west, sweltering temperatures were reported from several states. Robinson, Ill., had 105 above yesterday and Oklahoma City had 102.

Tabulation of Deaths

Here is a list of states and cities from which were reported the largest number of deaths from the heat:

State	Deaths
Chicago	368
Wisconsin	164
Iowa	173
Missouri	114
Indiana	65
Illinois (Chicago)	86
Dist. of Col.	65
St. Louis	75
Michigan	42
The Dakotas	39
Ohio	36
Indiana	31
Nebraska	19

Small numbers of deaths also were reported from other states, including Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana, Arkansas and many others.

Some Suggestions

1. Limit the use of firecrackers to community celebrations and by all means keep them away from children.
2. Drive slowly on crowded highways.
3. If you go bathing, keep out of deep water unless you are a good swimmer.
4. Call a physician to treat firecracker burns, otherwise lock-jaw may result.
5. Be moderate in celebrating.

"SLASH EXPENSE" ORDERS ISSUED BY COMMITTEE

Rehabilitation Of Chicago Finances Object Of Move

Chicago, July 3—(AP)—Orders to "slash all governmental payrolls and expenses to rock bottom" were issued last night by Gov. L. L. Emmerson's Tax Relief Committee at its initial meeting.

Members decided that city, county school board and every other branch of local government must trim expenditures to an absolute minimum before any revenue relief program can be effected for the contemplated special session of the legislature.

J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert, told the committee that between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000, being wasted annually by local government because of lack of economy.

In line with J. J. Jacobs' suggestions Mayor Anton J. Cermak, a guest at the conference, suggested to Chairman Joseph K. Brittain, that all heads of municipal governments in Cook county be called together and instructed to prune their budgets.

In line with the Cermak statement, Fred N. Sargent, President of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad and one of the "key" men of the Governor's committee, demanded that Chicago school board officials be called before the committee to explain why they had not begun to trim expenses along the same line already initiated, he said, by the city and county governments.

Nurse Killed In Traffic Accident

Chicago, July 3—(UP)—Julia McKenna, 21-year-old Evanston nurse, was killed instantly and Alphonse and Forrest Arnold, both of Evanston, were injured critically today when their automobile crashed into a street car on the northwest side.

Miss McKenna, a nurse at St. Francis Hospital, Evanston, was dead when she was removed from the wreck. Alphonse Arnold, an Evanston policeman, and his brother Forrest were taken unconscious to Martha Washington hospital. Forrest was said to be near death.

The accident happened at Irving Park Boulevard and the Chicago river, as the three were en route to attend a funeral. Crossing the river, their small sedan headed west down the incline from the bridge. Witnesses said the machine suddenly swerved into the path of an east-bound street car.

RE-MAPPING BILL BECOMES LAW AS EMMERSON SIGNS

Forty-Eight Other Acts Of Legislature Are Signed By Gov.

Springfield, Ill., July 3—(UP)—Congressional reapportionment in Illinois, whereby the state is divided into 27 districts instead of 25, became an accomplished fact today with the signing of a remapping bill by Governor L. L. Emmerson.

Practically every congressional district of the state is changed by the new law which allots fourteen districts to the metropolitan Chicago area and thirteen downstate.

The remapping increases Cook county's representation in Congress by two seats and with Will, DuPage, and Lake counties, participates in the selection of two additional seats.

The bill was passed by the recent session of the state legislature after a bitter attack on it by Democrats who assailed it as a "Republican gerrymander," claiming that it splits up two Democratic districts in Chicago and several downstate.

Heretofore Illinois, allotted 27 congressional seats, has been represented in the national House of Representatives by 25 district Congressmen and two Congressmen-at-large. The new scheme eliminates the Congressmen-at-large.

The bill was sponsored in the legislature by Representatives Richard Lyons, Lundein, and Sol Roderick, Chicago, both Republicans.

Prospective Candidates

As a result of the remapping several Republican members of the legislature are expected to be candidates for Congress, among them being, it is said, Lyons, Representative Ralph Church, Evanston, and Senators Richard Barr, Joliet and Harry Wilson, Pinckneyville.

Under the bill merchants are required to keep a record of all machine guns handled or purchased and are not permitted to keep machine guns or parts of such weapons in stock except for delivery to persons having signed permit for purchase. Among other bills signed were the following:

By Barr—Permits cities, villages and incorporated towns of less than 25,000 to incur additional indebtedness for payment of public benefits heretofore assessed.

By Paddock—Provides that non-high school districts shall be authorized by majority vote of such district provide free transportation for pupils in their district not living within two miles of a high school district.

By Huebsch—Authorizes county boards in counties of more than 500,000 to provide for creation of judicial advisory councils to study administration of justice problems.

By Huebsch—Fixes compensation for county collectors.

By Cuthbertson—Provides preparation of secondary jury lists containing not less than five per cent of the general jury list.

By Lantz—Provides that any female person convicted of a felony and sentenced to imprisonment shall be committed to the state reformatory for women.

Leg Injury Forced Shields From Match

Wimbledon, Eng., July 3—(UP)—Frank Shields of New York, who was to meet his townsman, Sidney B. Wood, in the finals of the men's tennis singles of the Wimbledon championships tomorrow, withdrew because of a leg injury today, automatically giving Wood the championship.

Shields' withdrawal marked the first time in the long history of the championship that a player has won the title by default.

Shields suffered a severe injury to his right leg in his semi-final victory over Jean Borotra of France on Wednesday. He was chasing a low cut just over the net when he lost his balance and plunged head foremost into the webbing.

He was forced to retire for emergency treatment but gamely came back to take the final and deciding set from the French ace.

The injury handicapped him seriously yesterday when he and Wood were defeated in a doubles semi-finals match by the French team of Cochet and Brugnon. The strapping New York boy, who is famed for his power game and ability to cover the court, limped badly and was unable to run for the simplest sort of placements.

Shields sacrificed his chance for the Wimbledon title, most desired of all tennis plums, in order not to endanger his value to the U. S. Davis Cup team.

Spanish Monastery Burned By Rioters

Coruna, Spain, July 3—(AP)—Burned by a mob of about 3,000 men and women, the Capuchin monastery of San Jose was in smoldering ruins today and its priests were hiding in fear of further antireligious outbreaks.

The city was under rigid military control with troops and civil guards patrolling the streets in compliance with the order of Minister of Interior Miguel Maura that "order must be maintained."

Inasmuch as the resumption of masses in the morning, the mob swept out of a bull ring where they had listened to anti-church addresses and set fire to the monastery. Firemen who tried to save the building were stoned and clubbed and had their hoses cut. The monastery burned to the ground along with four adjacent homes.

Warden At Joliet Won't Take Women

Charleston, Ill., July 3—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred Courtney of Hammond, Ind., who was taken to Joliet Wednesday to serve a term of from one to ten years for check forgery and confidence game operations has been returned to Charleston, having been rejected by the warden.

"We no longer accept women prisoners," the Warden told Sheriff Vincent Aye. "She will have to be committed to the women's prison at Dwight." Accordingly the woman will remain a prisoner in the county jail here until she is recommitted by Judge George W. Bristol.

Circuit court will not reconvene until July 20.

Mrs. Courtney is the first woman to be sentenced to the penitentiary from Cook county in more than forty years. Her husband, who was convicted with her on the charge of defrauding merchants with worthless checks, was sentenced to serve one to ten years in the Chester penitentiary at Menard. He will be committed within the next few days.

FORMER OFFICER SHOT

Joliet, Ill., July 3—(AP)—George Obinbuck, former policeman and Justice of the Peace, stood in front of his home this morning seeking relief from the heat.

He was called by a shower of machine gun bullets instead. They were fired from a speeding car.

Although several of the slugs struck him in the left arm and shoulder, he was not seriously injured.

He asked police to look for an unfriendly bootlegger.

OPEN CUT-OUTS TO BRING FINES TO CAR DRIVERS

Mayor Orders Ordinance Enforced Vigorously

Mayor George C. Dixon today after conferring with Commissioner H. A. Brooks of the Department of Public Health and Safety, ordered the rigid enforcement of the city ordinance pertaining to the operation of motor vehicles with cut-outs of mufflers. The Mayor's order to Chief of Police J. D. VanBlubber was as follows:

"I have conferred with Commissioner of Public Health and Safety Brooks regarding the practice of motor vehicles being operated without the use of mufflers, and we have decided that you are to notify all officers of your department to strictly enforce the ordinance of the city on that subject, and to arrest without warning, every operator of a motor vehicle violating the ordinance and immediately notify the City Attorney so that the offenders may be vigorously prosecuted. Please instruct your officers that there are to be no exceptions allowed to the strict enforcement of the ordinance referred to which provides:

"That it shall be unlawful to operate an automobile, motor cycle, motor truck or other similar motor vehicle without sufficient modern and improved mufflers preventing noise, or with its cut-out open on or along any public street, avenue or alley within the City of Dixon, or in or upon any public park or grounds belonging to or controlled by the said City of Dixon.

The penalty by the ordinance is a fine of not less than $3.00 or more than $50 for each offense.

Mayor Dixon is discussing the enforcement of the ordinance stated that the operation of motor boats on Rock river with open cut-outs was liable to come under the police order if the practice is not immediately discontinued. He pointed out the fact that numerous complaints had come to his office of the practice of operating trucks, pleasure cars and motor boats within the city limits with the cut-outs open and that the practice was to be halted at once.

Citizens of Dixon are requested to assist the police, Mayor Dixon added insofar as securing license numbers of violating vehicles and reporting them to the police.

FLIERS REST OVER WEEK END; HOOVER GUESTS ON MONDAY

A Dinner Last Evening Wound Up Welcome By New Yorkers

New York, July 3—(AP)—A nation's appreciation is to be shown Wiley Post and Harold Gatty for their flight around the world. A week-end yachting trip will enable them to recuperate from the rigors of the flight and the enthusiasm of New York City's welcome. And on Monday they will go to Washington to be President Hoover's guests.

Eventually Congressional honors are in store for them. Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut said last night at a dinner in the fliers' honor that he would introduce a resolution awarding them Congressional medals.

Before a week-end of rest the fliers had to do a little more of their specialty, fly the Winnie Mae from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, to Floyd Bennett Airport, Brooklyn, where it will be on public exhibition for three days.

The fliers were guests at a dinner last night. Among the guests were three other round-the-world travelers—Lieut. Leslie Arnold, U. S. A.; John Henry Mears and Col. E. S. Evans. Also there were Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier; Dr. James S. Kimball, weather forecaster for fliers; Elmer Smith, aviator; F. Trubee Davidson, Assistant Secretary of War in Charge of Aviation, and Clarence Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce in Charge of Aeronautics.

Hoover Sent Message

President Hoover wired the fliers at the dinner telling them America is proud of them and praising their striking contribution to aeronautical progress.

The fliers and their wives are delighted at the Welcome given them by New York City, which involved a parade up Broadway to City Hall for formalities. Ticker tape and torn books and paper showered up on them totalling three tons, 70 tons less than heaved in the direction Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when he returned from Paris, but there has been a steady effort by business houses and city authorities to discourage such manifestations of delight.

"How proud our three children are going to be!" remarked Mrs. Gatty in expressing her pleasure over the welcome.

Post and Gatty have disclosed no plans for future activities. F. C. Hall, Oklahoma oilman, who sponsored the flight, has said he will send the Winnie Mae to Oklahoma and later give it to his "little girl," Mrs. Winnie Mae Fain, after whom it was named.

Six Men Adrift On Lake In Burning Sun

Toledo, O., July 3—(UP)—Six men were recovering today from severe sunburn received when their speedboat was disabled and they drifted helplessly in the blistering sun for 10 hours before they were rescued by Coast Guardsmen in Lake Erie.

Their plight caused by a broken propeller shaft, verged on disaster when a wave nearly capsized the craft, and Kelley Nales was hurled overboard. He was rescued by his companions after the boat had righted itself. As they drifted under the merciless sun, the men hung over the side of the boat in the water until dark. Their rescue was effected shortly after midnight.

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CALLS UNITED STATES GREATEST NATION; CALLS HOOVER WISE, COURAGEOUS

London, July 3—(AP)—The United States is the greatest nation on earth in the eyes of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

The Hoover moratorium offer, he believes, is an "action of great wisdom, of great courage and of deep insight."

America and Great Britain are matching strides in the "great moral causes" of humanity, in his opinion.

He spoke at the Independence Day dinner of the American Society of London last night.

The Boston tea party, he said, was a historical incident, that "means you are able to lift up your heads to the world, that you have been able to build up by patient labor, by courage and by self-respect the greatest nation that now exists on the face of this earth."

"I am perfectly certain that to whatever political party you may belong you will excuse me if I say that the recent action of your President to alleviate and soothe the wounds and unhappiness of Europe is an action of great wisdom, of great courage and of deep insight."

ANNOUNCEMENT IS LOOKED FOR LATE THIS AFTERNOON

Accord Reported Reached By French and U. S. Officials

BULLETIN

Paris, July 3—(AP)—There are fairly reasonable prospects that accord the French and American negotiations will be achieved by tonight, a person in authority said this afternoon.

This informant declared that no agreement on the Hoover debt plan had yet been completed.

Washington, July 3—(AP)—American officials after communicating with Secretary Mellon in Paris today said they "hoped and expected" the completion of negotiations between the United States and France on President Hoover's debt suspension proposal before night.

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department and Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury met with Eugene Meyer, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in President Hoover's office to receive the telephone call from Secretary Mellon.

President Hoover was not present when the conversation took place as he was presiding over his regular Friday cabinet meeting.

The officials said they did not expect any definite announcement until after Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge had their conference late today in Paris.

Paris, July 3—(AP)—Hopes that the day would bring forth a successful termination to the Franco-American negotiations over the Hoover war debt proposal were widely expressed today.

Optimism prevailed in French and American circles as well as in the press that today's meeting between Premier Laval and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would be productive of an agreement and speedy execution of the plan to aid Germany by suspended reparations payments for one year.

It was learned from reliable sources that the French delegates had retreated from their position on important issues which have thus far caused a deadlock. It was understood that while certain technical matters remain to be adjusted the modified American viewpoint had been accepted.

Give Germany 10 Years

France has agreed to give Germany ten or more years to refund a loan based on the unpostponable payments of the Young plan, it was said, and has agreed that the funds shall go entirely to Germany without regard for other Central European nations.

France was understood to have further accepted a plan whereby she would deposit Treasury bonds with the World Bank to cover her guarantee fund in case Germany is forced to declare a moratorium at the end of the holiday. This point had been one of the chief stumbling blocks to an accord.

Great Britain's offer to call a meeting of the "interested nations," presumably signatories to the Young plan, in case the negotiations should fail was discounted by the delegates on the ground that such a conference would be unnecessary.

CAPITAL OPTIMISTIC

Washington, July 3—(AP)—Their cheerfulness restored by optimistic reports from Paris, officials here looked today for a speedy agreement on the moratorium.

They saw a possibility that the last differences between France and the United States would be eliminated at a conference in Paris today by Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge with Premier Laval.

Just what had led to the increased optimism was not announced. State Department circles, however, were the source for a belief that the French and American negotiators would agree to concessions making the remaining variations of viewpoint easily reconcilable.

The year's holiday from reparations and war debt payments, suggested by President Hoover two weeks ago tomorrow as a means of improving the world economic condition, involves the transfer of nearly a billion dollars.

President Hoover offered to forego war debt collections of about $245,000,000 provided other countries would agree to suspension of reparations payments to them in the fall.

lowing approximate amounts.
France $240,000,000, Great Britain $97,000,000, Italy $51,000,000, Belgium $27,000,000, Rumania $20,000,000, Greece $1,500,000, Portugal $3,000,000, Japan $3,000,000 and Poland $12,000,000. The United States also had $15,700,000 due in reparations before July 1, 1932.

Credit Given Mellon
Just a week ago France's objections led Secretary Mellon to extend to Paris what until that time had been called a "vacation." The chief of the American Treasury already had talked with British officials and diplomats here gave him considerable credit for the favorable turn in France. After another of his numerous trans-Atlantic telephone talks with Secretary Mellon, Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department said yesterday he was "very optimistic" over prospects for an accord.

Although Castle declined to elaborate upon that statement, it was known that the United States and France were compromising their views toward the time in which suspended German reparations payments should be refunded. France had announced for 5 years; America for 25.

Likewise there was belief that agreement was near on the positions toward the continuation of unconditional reparations.
There had been no indication of a change in the United States contention that French demands that credits from the unconditional reparations be applied only to German industries would be incompatible with the President's proposal.

Nor had there been any intimation that the United States felt it should take part in discussion involving France's guarantee fund payments to the International Bank under the Young plan.
All interested powers but France already had agreed to the principle of the moratorium. President Hoover also had assurance that the December Congress would approve necessary legislation, although too many modifications of the original offer might lead to some withdrawals of support.

After the strenuous session, Stone received reporters in the conference room. Ash trays were filled with cigar and cigarette stubs and the room was still hazy with smoke. The chairman was weary from the strain of the day. But he still felt that there need be no open break with the grain traders.

"There are indications," he said, "that a better feeling may be developed on both sides."
Yesterday he said the traders had showed not the slightest willingness to cooperate with the Board since that time.

The thing that finally provoked Stone to the point of his unusual outburst was his belief that the real purpose of the traders was to prevent the farmers from organizing. Cooperative marketing has been close to Stone's heart for years. Before his association with the Farm Board he was a leader in the cooperative movement and in 1920 organized the burley tobacco growers in his home state.

"Bootleggers' King"
Is Feared Kidnaped
Calumet City, Ill., July 3—(UP)—Belief that Johnnie Mundo, formerly known as "The King of Calumet City bootleggers," had been kidnaped or murdered was expressed today by his family and police who were searching for him. Mundo was taken from his home early last Tuesday by two men who remarked that they had "important business." His automobile later was found abandoned near his home.

Until two years ago, Mundo was known as the boss of an alcohol ring on the far south side. Of late, police said, he had been operating on a smaller scale.
Insure today. A Dixon Evening Telegraph Insurance policy will cost you $1.25 for a year's protection for $1,000 against accident.

FEUD FLARES UP
BETWEEN GRAIN
TRADERS, BOARD

Chairman Of Board Has Changed Mind About
The Traders

BY H. O. THOMPSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, July 3—(UP)—The old feud between the grain trade and the Federal Farm Board has flared up again. This time the break brings a definite end to hopes by the board that under its new Chairman a better feeling could be developed on both sides.

Clashes between the Board and the grain traders were frequent when Alexander Legge was Chairman. His attacks upon the traders were vigorous and pointed.
When James C. Stone, handsome, good natured Kentuckian, became chairman, it appeared there would be a change. Stone was known to believe that the traders, many of whom he knew and liked personally, could not be quite as bad as Legge's harsh language would indicate.

Stone has taken some time to change his mind but now he has lashed out with the charge that the traders were trying to wreck the Board, that they exerted pressure intended to embarrass the Board; and that the traders were attempting for their own ends, to keep the farmers from organizing. In order to discredit the Board, Stone said, the traders were trying to turn against the Board the very farmers whom the Board sought to help.

A few weeks ago Stone was joking about the difference between his methods and those of his predecessor.
"It isn't that I don't know how to tell anybody to go to hell," he said, "it's just that I haven't felt the need of it yet."

While Stone didn't exactly use Legge's language, he made himself just as clear when he did turn on the traders after a culminating series of events.
May a group of grain men, headed by Julius Barnes of the United States Chamber of Commerce spent a day with Stone. They wanted him to hold stabilization wheat off the market. Stone refused.

After the strenuous session, Stone received reporters in the conference room. Ash trays were filled with cigar and cigarette stubs and the room was still hazy with smoke. The chairman was weary from the strain of the day. But he still felt that there need be no open break with the grain traders.

"There are indications," he said, "that a better feeling may be developed on both sides."
Yesterday he said the traders had showed not the slightest willingness to cooperate with the Board since that time.

The thing that finally provoked Stone to the point of his unusual outburst was his belief that the real purpose of the traders was to prevent the farmers from organizing. Cooperative marketing has been close to Stone's heart for years. Before his association with the Farm Board he was a leader in the cooperative movement and in 1920 organized the burley tobacco growers in his home state.

ONE WITH A SONG
He sings: and his song is heard,
Pure as a joyous prayer,
Because he sings of the simple things—
The fields and the open air
The orchard-bough, and the Mocking bird,
And the blossoms everywhere

He sings of a wealth we hold
In common ownership—
The wildwood nook and the laugh of the brook,
And the dewdrop's drip and drip,
The love of the lily's heart of gold,
And the kiss of the rose's lip—

Ours every rapturous tone
Of every song of glee
Because his voice makes native choice
Of nature's harmony—
So that his singing seems our own,
And ours his ecstasy.

Steadfastly, bravely glad
Above all earthly stress,
He lifts his line to heights divine,
And, singing, ever says—
This is a better world than bad—
God's love is limitless.

"Home Folks."

Summer Sophistication Seen at Fashion Show

The metamorphosis of the flapper of yesterday into the suave sophisticate of today was emphasized by League of Advertising Win the fashion show given by the women of New York. Summer is personified in the diagonal check dune cotton street dress shown at left, with gauntlets of sheer white cotton buttoned onto the short sleeves and a parasol to match the costume. For a week-end wardrobe, the one-piece mailot of white jersey, applied in bright colors, from Stern Brothers, has a button-on skirt. Lovely and lady-like indeed is the yellow dune, eyelet-embroidered batiste, right, with tiered skirt, cape sleeves and cape back.

"Take It Easy" On Hot Days With These Cool Cornstarch Desserts

"Go slow and easy if you want to get along with me," are the words of an old song that are particularly applicable to dessert-making, in the summery days ahead of us.

There are always times when the cook wants to "take it easy"—and no real homemaker needs to have them enumerated! Certainly one of the times is when summer rolls 'round with its entrancing weather. Nobody wants to stay inside and labor over elaborate desserts. And nobody needs to, when so many delicate desserts may be made with the aid of our old household friend, cornstarch. Cool to make and cooling to eat and as economical as daylight savings days are long!

Of course, "easy is as easy does," but in the case of such palate-ticklers as Fruit Fluff, Graham Cracker Pie, or Lemon Foam, easy does very well, thank you!

In all justice, one more bromide must be recalled in this connection: "easy come—easy go" is never truer than when the family starts in to eat these desserts. But, after all, they are made to be eaten, and what more can one ask than that they fulfill their destiny?

So, relax in these summer days, and "take it easy!"

Lemon Foam

1 cup sugar
2 cups cold water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg white, beaten stiff
Boil together sugar and 1 1/2 cups of water for five minutes. Then stir in cornstarch mixed with remaining water. When mixture has thickened put in the top of double boiler over boiling water, to cook for 15 minutes. Add the lemon juice and salt and when cold, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Chill thoroughly, serve on sponge cake.

Fresh Fruit Fluff

3 cups milk
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sliced fruit
1/2 cup powdered sugar
Salt
Mix cornstarch with half cup milk. Scald remaining milk in top of double boiler. Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Stir scalded milk slowly into eggs and return to double boiler. Add cornstarch mixture, stirring constantly until thick and smooth, cover and cool twenty minutes. Remove from fire; add flavoring. Slice fruit into serving dish and pour hot custard over it. Beat egg whites, add sugar, and pile on top of pudding. Bake 15 minutes in slow oven, 320 degrees F. Chill and serve.

Graham Cracker Pie Crust

18 Graham crackers, rolled
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
1 tablespoon cream
Mix thoroughly

Filling

1 pint milk
3 tablespoons cornstarch
3 egg yolks
Salt and flavoring

Cook together until thick. Line pie plate, pressing hard to bottom and sides. Fill with cooked filling.

Meeting of W.F.M.S. Of Methodist Church With Mrs. D. C. Leake

The W. F. M. S. of the M. E. church met on Thursday with Mrs. D. C. Leake. While the attendance was not large on account of the heat, yet an interesting program was carried out.

"America" was sung for the opening number. Mrs. Wm. Gebhardt had charge of the devotional service. The topic was "Through Temple Doors to the Sanctuary." Helpful thoughts were brought out based on Psalm 84. "I Need Thee Every Hour" was sung and the Lord's Prayer was repeated. An article on Christian Stewardship was read by Mrs. Leake showing that not only material blessings come to us through tithing but the comfort of knowing that we are workers together with Him. Two stewardship prayers were offered. The Mite Box secretary gave a few helpful hints on how to use the "Mite Boxes" profitably. The Mite Boxes are to be brought to the picnic in August.

Mrs. W. H. Brewster, the Extension Secretary had charge of the program which consisted of two leaflets, "An Eighteen Day Expansion Diet" and "Through the Telescope."

The nominating committee is Mrs. W. H. Brewster, Mrs. A. T. Stephenson and Mrs. D. C. Leake. In August the society joins with the Home Missionary Society in a picnic. Mrs. Arthur Preston, Mrs. Emerson Bennett and Mrs. E. J.

Glenna Collett a Bride

Shortly before this picture was taken at a country estate near Greenwich, Conn., the name of the woman golf champion of the United States was Glenna Collett. But now it's Mrs. Edwin H. Vane, Jr., and here you see her with her husband, son of the late state senator and Republican leader of Philadelphia, following the wedding ceremony. For five successive seasons she has won the women's links title.

Marriages Less, and Divorces More, Than Year Ago in Lee Co.

Washington, D. C., July 3—(UP)—

Marriages decreased in Illinois at the rate of 9.7 per cent during 1930 as compared with the previous year according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce and made public here today.

According to the report there were 75,951 marriages performed in Illinois during 1930, as compared with 84,092 in 1929. In 1929 there were 75,208 marriages performed.

Divorces also diminished in number during 1930 as compared with 1929 but the percentage was much less than that recorded for marriages. The report shows that 15,432 divorces were granted in the state during 1930, while 15,758 were granted in 1929.

The Bureau of Census estimated the population of the state on July 1, 1930 was 7,659,000 and on July 1, 1929, 7,546,847. On the basis of those estimates, the number of marriages per 1000 population was 9.9 in 1930, as against 11.1 in 1929, and the number of divorces per thousand was 2.01 in 1930 as against 2.09 in 1929.

Marriages in Lee county in 1930 were 286 against 313 the year previous; while divorces granted in 1930 were 54 against 49 in 1929.

"Quick courtships and runaway marriages are the cause of many separations," Judge Frank P. Patterson said.

Rev. John Ray Ewers, of the East End Christian Church, said "Banns should be published before marriage so enough time could elapse between engagement and marriage to insure the couples they were not making a mistake."

Decrease in marriages in the same period, generally was attributed to business conditions.

AN OLD ARMY ERA PASSES.

News that the War Department has decided to abandon some 53 army posts in the far west sometime in the near future emphasizes again the way in which the nation has done an about-face in the last few decades. The change that has come over the army mirrors a change that has come over the whole country.

These posts are surviving relics of the old days of Indian warfare—the days of the "winning of the west," when the frontier was close at hand and America had no attention to spare for anything outside of its own borders. Now trails were being made into hostile wildernesses, new settlements were springing up amid distant mountains and on remote plains; army posts were needed for their protection, and the 53 that are soon to be decommissioned were, in their day, havens of safety for pioneer families.

Their very names speak of the color and romance of the old west. Fort Laramie, Fort Bridger, Fort Learned, Fort Phil Kearney—they excite memories of a day that never found its poet, a day when adventure, danger and bloodshed were abundant in the land and the red Indian was something more than a picturesque figure in story books.

The army was devised to meet those conditions. It did the job well. Little more than a constabulary force, from European standards, it was precisely the kind of army America needed. It was scattered all up and down the far west in small detachments, a platoon here and a platoon there; and the bravery and ability of the men in these detachments have given the army some of its brightest laurels.

When the Spanish-American War broke out it was discovered that there was not an officer in the army, except for a few Civil War veterans, who had ever seen a body of troops as large as a brigade assembled in one spot. As a preparation for war with a European power, this was almost disastrous; but it meant, really, that the army had been doing its job very well. Dispersion of its units had been essential. There had been no need to hold large-scale maneuvers.

But it is all different now, and the pending abandonment of the old posts proves it. The nation today has finished its frontier skirmishes; now it trains its army for war on a large scale, providing skeletonized commands that can be enlarged rapidly, making sure that it will never again be caught unprepared as it was in 1898.

That fact is a measure of the change that has come over the country. The end of the army's western forts marks the disappearance of the last vestiges of an old era in American history.

ON THE JOB 20 YEARS.

H. L. Williamson, whose reappointment as state superintendent of printing was confirmed by the senate recently has held the post during the administration of five governors. Beginning as superintendent of the division during the tenure of Governor Charles F. Deneen in 1910 he has been appointed successively to the job by Governors Edward F. Dunne, Frank O. Lowden, Len Small and Louis Emerson. He was twice appointed by Governor Small. Recently he rounded out twenty years of active service.

Mr. Williamson has been secretary of the Illinois Press association approximately twenty years.

The Evening Telegraph congratulates both Governor Emerson and Mr. Williamson on the Governor's reappointment of our highly efficient superintendent of printing.

"I hope that meat won't tumble loose. Just look how it is oozing juice," said Clowdy. "I can eat my share and more, when it is done. The fire is getting rather low so for some wood we ought to go. I'll stay and watch the meat while you bring sticks in, one by one."

"Gee, but you are a lazy lad," said Scouty, "but I'm more than glad to help out with the preparation of this dandy meal." Then off he ran to get some wood. The others helped as best they could. "Just think," cried Clowdy, "when we eat how dandy we will feel."

The happy Tynmites shortly found that, as the stick was turned around, the meat upon it had a chance to cook up to a brown. Soon Clowdy shouted, "It is done! Get ready now for some real fun, but do not eat so much that we can't walk back into town."

Great loaves of bread were sliced real thick and then of course it was no trick to make up real fine sandwiches. When these were handed out the Tynmites started in to eat. Said one, "My this is tasty meat! It's cooked all through. Now we can let the little fire go out."

When everyone had finished they said everything that they could say to thank the kindly natives who had given them the treat. And then they wandered on their way and shortly heard wee Scouty say, "I think I hear some music and it surely sounds real sweet."

Another added, "You are right. Just look ahead there! What a sight! The Tynmites saw two natives who had instruments quite queer. Their playing brought a real sweet tone. 'Why each one has a saxophone,' said Clowdy. 'Gee, but they play fine. Each note is loud and clear.'"

The Tynmites ride a carabao in the next story.)

JULY FOURTH ORDER

On July 3, 1917, General Petain, commander-in-chief of the French armies operating on the French front issued the following order in regard to the Fourth of July celebration of United States troops:

"Tomorrow, the Independence Day celebration of the United States, the first American troops which have departed in France will defend in Paris. Later they will join us at the front. Let us salute these new companions in arms who, without thought of gain or of conquest, but with the simple desire of defending the cause of liberty and right, have come to take their places in the ranks beside us."

"Others are preparing to follow them. They will soon be on our soil. The United States means to put at our disposition without reckoning, their soldiers, their factories, their vessels and their entire country. They want to pay a hundredfold the debt of gratitude which they owe to Lafayette and his companions."

"From all the points of the front a single shout on this July 4 will be heard: 'Honor to the great sister. Long live the United States!'"

Joke Seems To Be Operators Of Game

Washington, July 2.—(UP)—Several operators of "policy games," the form of gambling in which lottery tickets are sold, the winning numbers being determined by figures from the government Treasury balance usually issued daily, were reported to have lost heavily today because of the issuance yesterday afternoon of the figures which normally would have been issued today.

The figures were for June 30 and were as follows:

Net balance $471,943,983.32 ($471,943,983.32); expenditures $37,381,204.65 ($37,381,204.65); customs receipts $28,985,725.93 ($28,985,725.93).

It was reported that a number of persons bought tickets in various places after the figures were issued but before operators of the lottery were aware that the Treasury had given them out a day early. In Washington three operators were said to have been large losers.

MURDERER LIKELY TO CARRY SECRET TO CHAIR OCT. 30th

Charleston Officials Are Puzzled By Actions Of Young Killer

Charleston, Ill., July 3—(AP)—Mystery that shrouds Merle Johnson, 25-year-old confessed murderer of Mrs. Carrie Bowers and her two little sons, probably will be carried by the wild-eyed red-haired farm hand to his death in the electric chair at Menard, October 30.

He wanted to die. He clasped the hand of Judge George Bristow last Saturday and thanked him when the jurist imposed the sentence of "death by electrocution." He murmured as he was led away, "Thank God, I will die, I'm glad; I got what I wanted."

But more sinister than were his actions before the court, are the many "queer angles" that his case presents. He wanted no defense.

The court appointed Attorneys Chas. H. Fletcher, Mattoon and Miles Tippard, of Charleston, to defend him, and these two were baffled at his lack of concern over his fate.

The triple murders were committed May 20. Among the unexplained angles was Johnson's attempt to buy a Mattoon grocery store with living quarters for himself and Mrs. Bowers the day before the deaths as if in preparation for continued family life. Following his surrender Johnson repeatedly told tales of large sums of money hidden in the house that burned on the night of the killings, but evidence presented showed that he was unable to pay his house rent of $15 to Fred Harris, of Mattoon, a few days prior to the murders because "some things came up unexpectedly that set him back."

He had promised to pay Harris on May 22. Thomas Welch, next door neighbor to Johnson, testified that on noon Tuesday prior to the killing early Wednesday morning Johnson approached him to ask "how's work?" "Slack," Welch replied. "How would you like to make a deal for a rum running job?" Johnson asked. Welch did not take kindly to the suggestion, he testified, and Johnson told of his own rum running between St. Louis and "Speakeasies up in the north."

County officers who took the witness stand told of conversations with Johnson in which he referred to his booze running activities and gang wars and his allegations that his crowd was the rival of the Shelton gang. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fryman, of Mattoon, the latter a sister of Mrs. Bowers, testified to Johnson's kind treatment of Mrs. Powers and her children, but denied any knowledge of Johnson's "booze business."

Told of Trouble
"He told me on Tuesday before he killed Carrie that he was in trouble but I don't know what kind," Mrs. Fryman said on the witness stand. Another mysterious angle testified to by J. C. Weaver, fire chief of Mattoon, was his discovery of a smoking trunk in one room of the house that has escaped flames following the gas explosion that preceded the murders. Investigation revealed that the bottom of the trunk and the floor beneath it was burned out.

Johnson was calm and attentive throughout his final hearing Saturday. Only once did he appear uneasy that was when a witness testified to finding the small boys with their heads crushed in by an automobile crank. With Johnson during the hearing was his brother Orville, 17, of Drasco, Arkansas. After the death sentence, the third in history of Coles county, was imposed, Johnson grasped the judge's hand and said, "I thank you judge." After he left the court room with officers he lighted a cigarette and remarked "I got just what I wanted."

His defense attorneys tried to unravel some of the wild tales told by the prisoner. They tried to learn his true relationship with Mrs. Bowers whom he confessed he murdered because "she requested it."

Both Wanted To Die
Johnson told his attorneys he and Mrs. Bowers had decided that they had lived enough of this life and both wanted to die, taking the children with them. He has admitted that the younger boy, Delmar, 19 months old, was his. Johnson had worked for Mrs. Bowers' husband, Joseph Bowers, on a rice plantation near Stuttgart, Ark., prior to Bowers' death in April 1930. After his death, Johnson continued in the employ of Mrs. Bowers and accompanied her and the two little children when they moved to Mattoon last February. He admitted that he lived with her and that he had introduced her as his wife. Johnson, who is but twenty-one years old, according to his younger brother, Orville, has never been married.

Following the murder of Mrs. Bowers and her two children, Ernest Fryman of Mattoon, brother-in-law of the slain woman, confronted Johnson in his cell in the county jail with the accusation that he and Mrs. Bowers poisoned Bowers "to get him out of the way." Johnson has steadfastly denied the charge, which was not taken up by officers. He told a fellow prisoner in the jail, in response to a question, that he did not kill Joe Bowers.

"I did not kill him and I have no desire to kill anyone else. That would be a sin. Mrs. Bowers asked me to kill her, and I did only as she requested," he said.

His brother, a tall sandy-haired country youth who hitch-hiked all the way from his home in Drasco, Ark., to the county jail in Charleston to see Johnson, was as puzzled as county authorities over his brother's calm recital of the details of the gruesome triple murder of May 20. The youth, Orville, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Johnson of Drasco, Ark., is the brother of the slayer. There are no sisters.

Wanted No Help

"When I asked Merle how he came to do such a dreadful thing, he looked at me a few moments and then answered, 'Didn't you read the papers?'" the youth said. "He told me not to try to help him and not to get a lawyer. He said there was a way that would get him off in two years but he didn't want to take it—that he was ready to take 'what was coming to him.' He wouldn't explain how he could get off in two years and I don't understand that. I am sure he is in his right mind—he talked like he ought to."

Merle's right name is Murley, according to Orville. Merle has a "good education," Orville asserts, but he has attended so many different schools that he could not say what grade he had attained. "He was always a good boy at home and never a hand to drink or quarrel and he thought the world and all of those children he killed," the younger brother declared. "Last fall when we were working in the rice fields near Stuttgart, Ark., Merle would buy presents for those kids every time he went to town."

"Merle worked for Mrs. Bowers in Arkansas and I worked in a neighbor's field. He hasn't been home since last August," the youth said. Weeks of questioning by the authorities in an attempt to get a more logical motive for the crime failed to change Johnson's original story. Over and over the familiar tale was told. First of Carrie Bowers plan and attempt to asphyxiate herself and her two small sons by turning on the gas in the home that she shared with Johnson, of the explosion that caused her suicide plan to go awry and the resultant fire from which Johnson rescued the children, suffering severe burns in so doing. He told how he placed all three in his automobile—how she pleaded with him to kill them and how he drove into the country and carried out her wish. He tried to end his own life, he says, but the gun stuck, so he walked Mattoon and gave himself up to police authorities.

The booze ring activities of Johnson may never be aired but they motivated the killings, in the opinion of Mrs. Ernest Fryman of Mattoon a sister of Mrs. Bowers. Mrs. Fryman revealed details of a visit that Merle Johnson made to the Fryman home on the outskirts of the city Tuesday afternoon, May 19, prior to the triple murder shortly after midnight.

"Johnson came to our house bringing the two little boys in the car with him," Mrs. Fryman said today. "He left the children in the car and I could see that he was greatly disturbed when he entered the house. His eyes were bloodshot and I knew at once that he was in trouble."

"Anna, we're in a h— of a fix," he said, adding they almost got us last night and they're sure to get us sooner or later."

Tale Of Warfare

Then followed a tale of "booze gang warfare on the previous night," Mrs. Fryman said. No names were mentioned and he spoke with caution and with fear, she asserted. He told her that his truck had been "riddled with bullets" following its discovery in forbidden territory by members of a rival gang and that he had escaped "but it had cost him plenty of money." He also told his paramour's sister that he knew that "they" would get him yet, "that he would be on the spot."

Mrs. Bower had been very secretive about Johnson's "business" but it apparently worried her. Mrs. Fryman said. She had appeared to be in deep trouble. It was generally known by the relatives according to Mrs. Fryman, that Johnson was the driver of a large booze truck and that he worked at night and slept during the day. They also know that the truck was repainted very frequently to destroy its identity. They did not know where he got his load nor where he delivered it, she said. They thought he worked a regular route.

On the occasion of the Tuesday afternoon visit, Johnson remarked according to Mrs. Fryman, "Anna, you'd be surprised if you knew who is in that gang" but he did not volunteer to tell her. He told her once before his gang had "shot" it out with the rival gang somewhere between here and St. Louis.

"He was always so good to Carrie and the boys that I can't believe they had a quarrel," Mrs. Fryman said, "I believe they were afraid and decided to end it all."

Members of the Fryman family advanced the theory soon after the murder that Carrie Bowers was killed because she "knew too much."

POET'S CORNER

DEATH

Death forecloses the mortgage on life,
Issues release to woe and strife
Distributes our wealth to friends or wife
Sends us rejoicing to another life.

Prepares us for judgment by our Maker
Gives many a smile to the undertaker
Thrives the business of the Casket-maker
Fills up the Hearse, the Coffin-taker.

Soon populates the cemetery
When we're dead, tis here we bury
Our loved ones come and tarry
To erect a monument "Sacred Memory."

Only Fourth of July Address By Geo. Washington

The only Fourth of July address ever made by George Washington was delivered at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, on Independence Day, 1791. This place, at that time, was the largest inland town in the United States.

Washington, in his diary, thus describes the incident: "Monday, July 4, 1791. This being the Anniversary of American Independence and being kindly requested to do it, I agreed to halt here this day and partake of the entertainment which was preparing for the celebration of it. In the forenoon I walked about the town—at half past 2 o'clock I received, and answered an address from the corporation and the compliments of the Clergy of different denominations, dined between 3 and 4 o'clock, drank tea with Mrs. Hand."

The address from the corporation was as follows: "To George Washington, President of the United States:

"Sir: On behalf of the inhabitants of the borough of Lancaster, the members of the Corporation beg leave to congratulate you on your arrival at this place. On this jovial occasion, they approach the First Magistrate of the Union with hearts impressed with no less grateful respect than their fellow-citizens of the East and South. With them they have admired those talents, and that firm prudence in the field, which finally ensured success to the American arms. But at this time, reverence forbids the language which would naturally flow from the recapitulation of the events of the late glorious revolution. The faithful page of history will record your illustrious actions for posterity. Yet we cannot forbear to mention what we, in our day, have beheld and witnessed. We have seen you at the awful period, when the storm was bursting around us, and our fertile plains were deluged with the richest blood of America, rising above adversity, and exerting all the talents of the patriot and the hero, to save our country from the threatened ruin; and when, by the will of Heaven, these exertions had restored peace and prosperity to the United States, and the great object for which you drew the sword was accomplished, we have beheld you, adorned with every private social virtue mingling with your fellow citizens. Yet that transcendent love of country, by which you have always been actuated, did not suffer you to rest here; but when the united voice of myriads of freemen (your fellow citizens) called you from the repose of domestic life, actuated solely by the principles of true glory—not seeking your own aggrandizement, but sacrificing the sweets of retired life to the wishes and happiness of your country, we have beheld you, possessed of the confidence of a great people, presiding over their councils, and, by your happy administration, uniting them together by the great political bond of one common interest.

"It is, therefore, that the inhabitants of this borough size with joy the only opportunity which has offered to them, to testify their approbation of, and their gratitude for, your services.

"Long, very long, sir, may you enjoy the affections of your fellow citizens. We pray for a long continuance of your health and happiness, and the choicest blessings of Heaven on our beloved country—and on you—its Father and its Friend."

Washington's reply to the above address was as follows: "To the Corporation and the Inhabitants of the Borough of Lancaster:

"Gentlemen: Your congratulations or my arrival in Lancaster are received with pleasure, and the flattering expressions of your esteem are replied to with sincere regard.

"While I confess my gratitude for the distinguished estimation in which you are pleased to hold my public service, a sense of justice to my fellow-citizens ascribes to other courses the peace and prosperity of our highly favored country. Her freedom and happiness are founded in their patriotic exertions, and will

I trust, be transmitted to distant ages through the same medium of wisdom and virtue. With sincere wishes for your social, I offer an earnest prayer for your individual welfare."

At 3 o'clock the President and a very large number of citizens "sat down to an elegant entertainment, provided for the occasion, in the Court House."

Fifteen regular toasts were given, and finally President Washington gave the toast, "The Governor and State of Pennsylvania" and retired, when the company arose and volunteered a toast, "The Illustrious President of the United States."

HEAT AFFECTED GOLFERS' GAME AT INVERNESS

Play Of Several Favorites Retarded By Humidity

Inverness Club, Toledo, O., July 3.—(AP)—With the heat and the hazards already taking a terrific toll among favorites and spectators, Edgie Williams, diminutive Cleveland professional, and Charley Guest of Deal, N. J., shot out of the pack today to take an early lead in the first round of the United States open golf championship. Both Williams and Guest scored 36-35-71, even par.

Herman Barron of Portchester, N. Y., later turned a card of 35-36-71, to join the leaders.

Al Espinosa of Chicago was right behind the pace-setters with 36-36-72.

Arthur H. Andrews of Davenport, Iowa, shot 37-42-79.

Charles Whitcombe, the British Ryder Cup captain, previously had withdrawn because of a weak knee.

Percy Alliss, the British pro from Berlin, who was picked as a hot favorite, got away to a bad start, scoring 40-38-78. He was in company with Ed Dudley, the Western open champion, who scored 36-39-75.

Henry Cotton, another British favorite, was off poorly, taking 40 on the first nine, and Abe Mitchell, after a weird 7 on the first hole remarked:

"They're murdering the bloody game over here." His hearers assumed he had reference to the heat and the balloon ball.

Tommy Armour, the British open champion, was out in 37, two over par, after a shaky start.

No casualties were reported from the heat by lunch time, but first aid and buckets of water were provided all over the course and motor cycle police put-putted along the outskirts, on of them arousing the ire of "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn as he missed a short one on the green.

A specially treated coke is now on the market. This provides a fuel for fireplaces that without dirt, smoke, or odor, although it gives out more heat.

AUTO ACCIDENTS ALWAYS SOAR ON FOURTH OF JULY

"Drive Slowly And Think Fast" Good Slogan For Holiday

PRICE OF PATRIOTISM
Fireworks furnish thrills galore, provide fun and perhaps fan the flames of patriotism, but it must not be forgotten that they also:

Destroy eyesight.
Cause explosions.
Start disastrous fires.
Result in lockjaw deaths.
Mangle fingers, hands and arms.
Cause many motor vehicle tragedies.

Burn, bruise, lacerate, poison and kill.
Cause needless expense, suffering and endless regrets.

—National Safety Council
Chicago, July 2.—(Special)—Motor vehicle accidents always soar to a high peak during the third, fourth and fifth of July. The reason is obvious.

Patriotic America celebrates on wheels nowadays. Picnics, fishing trips, golf dates, the start of the annual vacation, family reunions, all of these things and many others furnish ample excuse to tune up the family car and get clear away from the old home town.

The result has been a noticeable reduction in the old time fireworks casualties but on the other hand the increase in highway accidents has more than offset these reductions. There will be at least 100 motor vehicle fatalities and perhaps 3500 non-fatal motor vehicle casualties on the Fourth of July.

On the third and fourth of July this same high rate will probably be maintained. The daily average of motor vehicle deaths during July last year was 90.

Fourth of July celebrations leave nothing but regrets when an accident spoils the outing. In the interest of a happy motorized celebration the National Safety Council offers the following pertinent advice:

1. Check your car thoroughly before starting long trips, particularly your brakes, lights, steering gear and tires.

2. Remember that in driving strange roads there may be unforeseen hazards. Heavy traffic increases the dangers of unfamiliar highways.

3. Take time to read and heed all traffic signs, warnings and signals. They are there for just one purpose and that is safety.

4. Stay in line. Very little is gained by cutting around. The risk isn't worth the few seconds gained.

5. Be wary of the other driver's acts. He may be a safe driver, but on the other hand he may be a reckless, irresponsible moon. Often it takes an accident to properly identify and classify this type of driver.

6. Don't "assume" at grade crossings. There'll be lots of these tragedies over the Fourth. Alert drivers will not be listed among these victims.

7. Don't let yourself be carried away by the spirit of Independence Day, the beauties of nature, or the love of conversation. Otherwise you may find yourself being carried away in an ambulance.

In other words it's a mighty good plan to decrease your speed and double your alertness. Or, to sum it all up in a safety capsule:

DRIVE SLOW AND THINK FAST!

CHINESE CREW MANS REMARKABLE YACHT

Paris.—(UP)—One of the world's most luxurious and remarkable yachts is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Fahnstook and is called the Shenandoah III. Its furnishings are from 250 to 800 years old. The owner and navigator procured a Chinese crew and had painted up in the bows the Devil's stinging eye with which every celestial junk is provided. The drawing room is fitted up as a replica of a little temple near Peking which was the favorite retreat of the late Dowager Empress at the time of the Boxer uprising. The doors are of sandal wood and the wall decorations are carved in gold, copper and redlacquer.

The Shenandoah III is a 1,000-ton four-master and Fahnstook himself has skipped her to the Riviera from China by way of Saigon, Singapore, Rangoon, Coambo, Suva, Malta and Naples.

Man May Eat Cigar Wrappers And Grow Fatter

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor
Ithaca, N. Y., July 3.—(AP)—

Science may teach man how to eat the transparent wrapping of his cigars in a diet experiment which will begin at Cornell University this fall.

The glass-clear, paper-thin stuff will be fed to human beings to learn whether its food value as "roughage" is superior to that of bran. Evidence that for rats at least this new product of the synthetic laboratories is better than brand has been established already in more than two years of experiment in the animal nutrition laboratory by Dr. C. M. McCay, Assistant Professor of Animal Nutrition.

Recently there died in this laboratory the last of the rats which ate the stuff and all of which thrived upon it. They all died of old age.

That means the novel food seemed completely good for them. The last one was two and a half, a ripe old age for a rat. One fifth of his food was this wrapper material. He ate a volume about equivalent to a well packed bushel basket full, and it weighed six pounds. The rat weighed one pound.

The wrapping material was bought from scraps at the factory. Its only preparation was washing in water to remove the glycerine which is a harmless food. That, says Dr. McCay, is likewise all the preparation anticipated as necessary for the human feeding.

Just put the cigar wrapper under the water tap for a moment, and it is ready to eat. Whether it is good to eat only the experiments will determine, but the effect upon rats is a fairly reliable index because among animals their metabolism is closest to that of human beings.

STATE POLITICAL POT IS STARTING TO WARM UP NOW

Many Announcements Of Candidacies Expected In Short Time

Springfield, Ill., July 3.—(UP)—Campaign of factions within Republican and Democratic parties for nomination of candidates for various offices is expected to be given impetus with launching of additional booms next week, the United Press learned today.

One of the booms is expected to be that of Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, who is known to seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Another is that of States Treasurer E. J. Barrett, Chicago, for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State.

Formal announcement of Carlstrom's candidacy is expected within a few days though at his office here today it was said that "there is nothing to say."

With the expected announcement of Carlstrom's candidacy there will be two Republicans out for the gubernatorial nomination. The other is William H. Malone, Chicago, former chairman of the State Tax Commission.

Malone is anti-Emmerson and is said to have considerable support in the state's agricultural sections.

Igoe Only Democrat
So far Michael L. Igoe, Chicago, National Committeeman and Minority Leader in the State House of Representatives, is the only Democrat who has announced his candidacy for Governor.

Meanwhile Governor L. L. Emmerson and former Governor Len Small, foremost Republicans in the state, continue as the political enigmas to those Republicans who appear anxious to know what each is going to do.

Because of their sphinx like silence especial emphasis is expected to be attached to political roundups of candidates at the State Fair here next month.

Emmerson is declared a "certain" candidate by many of his friends while others, not so friendly appear doubtful if he will make the race for Governor. If he is a candidate for office it will be either for Governor, senator or vice-president.

The latter office has been mentioned frequently since his veto of a bill to repeal the state prohibition law.

Small Keeps Silence
Former Governor Small, however, appears to be an even greater sphinx than Emmerson, he giving no indication of his political plans.

If Small means to make a fight for the gubernatorial office or intends to openly espouse another's candidacy he will probably make it known at the Kankakee County fair, which is held the week previous to the State Fair.

The Kankakee fair, one of the biggest agricultural expositions in the state, is always a mecca for Republicans and some Democratic politicians. Because of its political attraction the fair is expected to surpass in attendance fairs of previous years.

Democratic Day at the State Fair will be held on August 26, with the following day taken over by Republicans.

Should Emmerson decide not to run for Governor a number of candidates are expected to develop.

Foremost among these probably would be that of Omer N. Custer, Galesburg, chairman of the State Tax Commission. Others might include State's Attorney John Swanson, and United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, both of Chicago.

Other Democrats who are considered possible gubernatorial candidates are Congressmen at Large William E. Dieterich, Beardstown, Bruce Campbell, East St. Louis, and Col. A. A. Sprague, Chicago.

Other Candidates
A crop of candidates for other state offices have already been announced.

Scott Lucas, Havana, is one of the first Democrats to announce his candidacy for United States Senator.

Lucas, a former Three Eye League baseball player, recently resigned as Judge Advocate of the American Legion so that he would be free to make the race.

Names of three Democrats have been mentioned for Secretary of State. They are: State Senator, George Maypole, Chicago; State Treasurer E. J. Barrett, Chicago; and Nuell Brake, Mt. Sterling.

Uncle Sam, still leader of the world despite business ills pauses this July 4 to celebrate his 155th birthday and to honor those brave forefathers who sacrificed their all for liberty's cause.

As 120,000,000 Americans celebrate the nation's founding pages of history turn back to 1776, when patriotic men and women gave their personal fortunes and, some, their lives for our freedom. Statesmen heroes they were, but as brave as those who carried muskets.

One valiant patriot rose from a sick bed and rode 80 miles through a blinding storm to cast a needed vote for independence; another risked death as a traitor, went to prison and died from the harsh treatment; others saw their homes looted and their families scattered because they had signed the Declaration; one fired the cannon that destroyed his own mansion, then the stronghold of the British.

On July 3, 1776, it became evident that the vote would be taken the next day at Philadelphia on Richard Henry Lee's resolution before Congress.

Democrats heard most are those of Representative Truman Snell, Carlinville, and Senator T. J. Courney of Chicago. Senators A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, A. J. Huebsch and James J. Barbour, both of Chicago, have been mentioned as republican candidates.

Picking Your Job

As told to J. C. FitzGerald
Of the American School of the Air
The same qualities are needed for success in building that would be required in getting ahead in any other business—perseverance, moral character, leadership, ability to work hard, and ability to stand temporary disappointment.

Boys who can use their hands deftly, who can build things, who have the perception for seeing the interrelation of unasssembled parts of a constructed whole, would be more apt to succeed in the building business if they should direct those natural talents toward construction.

A good engineering course is an excellent preparation for the building industry. Civil engineering more particularly addresses itself to foundations and structures, but any engineering course goes a long way toward preparing a young man for the building industry.

A good engineering course does not necessarily mean one in one of the leading engineering schools or colleges. Already we are seeing the men of ability coming out of night classes, and, indeed, from one of the best correspondence schools.

Men of scholastic education generally enter through the administrative offices on the site, that is, as timekeepers, clerks, checkers, or accountants. However, the door of large opportunities is by no means closed to the mechanic or even the laborer, if he has the prerequisite qualities.

Building companies are generally divided into three principal functions—administrative, accountancy, and operation. Administration may be described as that general supervision which establishes the contacts with the public, supervises the obtaining of new business, gives voice to the financial and ethical policies and supports the operating department in the conduct of its work. The accountancy department includes the services of expert accountants, who have knowledge of banking and financial relations.

The operating department includes the actual supervision of the work, the supervision of estimating, the supervision of purchase and subcontracting, the coordinating of all these activities and their unified direction, to the end that the buildings will be built on time and within the financial requirements of the various operations in hand.

Generally, men who have had a scholastic training that fits them for the work start at from $25 to $40 a week.

John Hancock, of Massachusetts, famous as being the first to sign, had been offered a commission in the British army a year previously if he would forsake the colonists' cause.

"Tell your majesty," Hancock informed the messenger, "that I would rather be a private against tyranny than a field marshal for the king."

When Lewis Morris of New York was ready to sign, he received disconcerting news. The British army lay at the gates of his Long Island home, but his property would be spared if he refrained from writing his name. "There are plenty of homes," he replied, "but only one country." He paid dearly. He lost his fortune and his family was driven into exile. To strike back harder, he resigned from Congress, to fight as a general under Washington.

Thomas Nelson of Virginia was wealthy. But he risked all to sign. Later he became governor before the British occupied the state. He mortgaged all the land that he owned for $2,000,000 to help drive out the enemy.

Visiting the firing line, Nelson noticed that guns had not been trained on his own home, evidently the heart of the British defense.

"Governor," an officer explained, "we are sparing it out of respect for you."

George Read of Delaware regarded the movement as premature, but signed the document. Samuel Adams, wishing to test Read's zeal informed him quite solemnly that he wielded the pen with a noose around his neck. "So be it," said Read. During the war, his home was seized, his wife captured and throughout six years he was driven from place to place like a hunted fox.

cause. "Let me have one of the cannon," Nelson said. Then he aimed it towards his own home, touched it off and watched the ball plow through the mansion. With that example before them, the Americans soon drove on the British. Nelson died penniless.

Richard Stockton of New Jersey, was captured at the home of a friend. His estate was plundered. His fine library was burned. Harsh prison treatment undermined his health and he died a few years later.

Francis Lewis' New York home was destroyed. His wife was captured. She was offered her liberty if she would persuade her husband from the Revolution, but she refused.

George Read of Delaware regarded the movement as premature, but signed the document. Samuel Adams, wishing to test Read's zeal informed him quite solemnly that he wielded the pen with a noose around his neck. "So be it," said Read. TREATING ECZEMA

The treatment of eczema is always an individual medical problem. Seldom are two eczema cases alike as to cause, and treatment must be fitted to the individual requirements of each patient. However, some general principles of care are applicable to all cases. These relate principally to diet and to personal hygiene.

Eczeema is not infrequently associated with other diseases such as gout, diabetes, rheumatism, malaria, diseases of the kidneys and of the liver, gastric disturbances and focal infections.

Even when the existence of other diseases is excluded, the patient must cooperate with his doctor in the effort to maintain a high level of well being.

He must make all efforts possible to avoid infectious disease; he should keep his teeth, gums and throat in good condition, and he should avoid gastric disturbances and constipation.

Diet bears an important relation to eczema. In some cases, particularly in many cases of young children, sensitivity to certain food articles is the primary cause of the condition.

But practically all cases of eczema of internal origin are benefited by a proper diet.

Eczeema sufferers should eat very sparingly. They should not diet severely except on instruction by their physician, but they should learn to rise from the dinner table before they are full.

They should avoid excess sugar in their diet, and, in fact, should reduce it to an absolute minimum.

Most cases of eczema profit by excluding from the diet shellfish, chicken, such as mackerel, eels, salmon and sardines; meats that are hard to digest such as veal, liver, bacon, pork, salt meat, rich game and goose; vegetables such as radishes, asparagus, rhubarb and unripe fruits.

Condiments such as mustard, pepper and curries should also be avoided.

Nature's "War Birds" Entered In Rodent Battle

Washington—Promotion of deadly air raids by nature's "fighting planes" is being urged by agricultural colleges as an urgent necessity in combating a threatened large increase in the number of field rats, mice and other rodents and the possible destruction of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of crops.

The Missouri College of Agriculture has issued a warning that due to the drought and the mild winter an unusual number of rodents can be expected in most sections of the country, according to a bulletin of the American Game Association.

Rudolph Bennett of the department of zoology of the University of Missouri has advised the Missouri department of fish and game to encourage protection of beneficial owls and hawks among the most effective enemies of rodents.

Though there are more than 30 species of hawks and owls in the state, Bennett said, and only four that prey on poultry, game and other birds, many farmers kill them indiscriminately and indirectly cause heavy loss of crops, insect-eating birds and game from destructive small animals.

Sportsmen and farmers, before shooting hawks and owls, should apply to their state game departments for detailed information on which species are harmful and their description, the association report advised. This was declared important, since certain species considered undesirable in one section have been declared valuable in another.

The only hawks generally recognized by game officials as enemies of bird life are the Cooper's or the "blue hawk," the sharp-shinned hawk, the goshawk and the scarce duck hawk and the prairie falcon, the report stated. The outlived owl is the great horned owl.

Charge Traders Are Fighting Farm Board

Washington, July 2.—(AP)—The charge that grain traders were attempting to prevent farmers from organizing was made today by Chairman Stone of the Farm Board. He said the desire to obstruct growth of cooperatives was behind the traders' activities in pressing for a more definite statement on stabilization wheat sales.

"I am not going to let them dictate what is in the best interests of the farmers," the Chairman added. "I think the pressure to hold wheat off the market for a year or until prices have reached a certain level, was started by them. At least the only bad reaction to the new statement made Tuesday has come from those traders. They are making every attempt to discredit the Farm Board and the Grain Stabilization Corporation."

Stone charged the traders had not shown any desire to cooperate in helping the farmer or in solving the wheat problem.

SIMILARITY BETWEEN ROASTING COFFEE AND COOKING FOODS

"A Little at a Time" Is the Secret for Securing the Finest Flavor

Foods generally taste better when cooked in small quantities. For then the cook can mix her ingredients properly, also control the heat. When coffee is roasted in small quantities, the same thing is true. But when coffee is roasted in bulk—as most coffees are—exact control is lost. Under-roasting and over-roasting very easily occur. This method being so unsatisfactory, caused Hills Bros. to look for some improvement—some way to roast their rare blend to uniform perfection. They experimented for years, and eventually invented and patented Controlled Roasting.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow... a little at a time... so the fine, uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously... a little at a time. Marvelous unvarying flavor results in every pound. For no berry is underdone nor overdone.

Hills Bros. Coffee is always fresh. It is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Order Hills Bros. Coffee today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

are not forbidden

There is today a malt-and-hop brew even better than the best of old. It is made by one who knows the best and brewed it.

Not a "near-beer," not a makeshift. It has all the best qualities of the old brews, all the purity, all the age. All the flavor and aroma, all the sparkle and the foam. It has all the delights, all the soothing qualities, all the digestive helps. It has the esters and the aldehydes—the chief invigorating factors.

Most of the alcohol is evaporated after brewing, but you miss that only in imagination. Were you told that this was a pre-war brew, you could not discover the difference.

The tonic factors, the digestive factors, soothing, sleep-producing factors are still there. Atlas Special Brew has more delights than old brews. You will enjoy it more when you know it, and those joys will never be forbidden.

Don't deny yourself a malt-and-hop brew, just because one factor is decreased. Don't turn to substitutes, wretched and impure, just for that small percentage.

This is a Master Brew

Atlas Special Brew is a superlative creation. We use the finest barley malt, the best domestic and Bohemian hops. We treat the water that we use to match the finest European brews.

The quality and purity are certified on every bottle by a famous independent laboratory.

Drink it if you miss the old delights, the old aids to sleep and digestion. All those factors are at their best in Atlas Special Brew.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Taking our desires, our motives, to God, we find in the light of His perfect divine motive that they must indeed be shorn of much unloveliness before they can result in that perfect activity which reflects divinity, and that alone. STRIBLING AND SCHMELING BOTH SAY THEY'LL WIN

Battlers are In Great Condition For Title Bout Tonight

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Cleveland, July 3.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, will defend his title tonight against the challenge of that strong, wiry, young Georgian, W. L. (Young) Stribling, with the prospect of an attendance of 40,000 to 50,000 with receipts of $300,000 to $400,000.

The powerful German had who somewhat resembles Jack Dempsey in facial features and ring characteristics, will battle Stribling 15 rounds or less for the title in Cleveland's $2,000,000 stadium on the shores of Lake Erie. It will be the German's first defense of his crown since he won it on a foul in four rounds from Jack Sharkey a year ago.

Stribling, the challenger, remained a 3 to 2 and 7 to 5 favorite to win the title, with very little betting on the result of the battle, chiefly because there was very little Schmeling money in sight.

Evenly Matched Physically
Both Schmeling and Stribling will step into the ring as well-matched physically as any two heavyweights who ever fought. There will be less than three pounds difference between them in weight. They will have practically the same reach and the same height. Both finished their training strong and in perfect condition.

They weighed-in last night in the studio of WTAM, Cleveland's broadcasting station, with the proceedings going to listeners throughout the nation. The weights were officially announced as 186½ pounds for Stribling, with Schmeling scaling 189.

The studio was packed to the point of suffocation with sports writers and such celebrities of the ring as Primo Carnera, the man-mountain of Italy; Jim Corbett, who at one time wore the world's heavyweight championship belt, and George Blake of Los Angeles, the referee of tonight's title contest.

The crowd was so big that police had to be called in to clear the center of the studio so that photographers could get a few shots. Schmeling wore black trunks, trimmed with red. Stribling's trunks were white. They grinned at each other, shook hands, and exchanged a few words, but nobody could hear much of what they said.

Fans Want Rain
While the fighters were resting in quiet retreats today, prayers went up from the fight fans for rain, for a cooling breeze, that would release them from the terrific heat that has baked and parched Cleveland. The weather remained oppressively hot, but with indications that the heat wave might be broken by thundershowers before Stribling and the champion climb into the ring a few minutes after 10 o'clock tonight. The battle will be held as scheduled unless there is a terrific downpour forcing a postponement until tomorrow night.

The ring was pitched over second base of the baseball diamond in the stadium, overtopped by 36 floodlights. Four huge blower fans were arranged above the ring to sweep out the humidity and the "June bugs" large-winged insects that are troublesome, but surrender and fade away before the fans.

The stadium has a seating capacity of 110,000 persons with 78,189 permanent seats in the huge horseshoe-shaped stands. There were 13,000 ringside seats selling at $25 each, with the prices in the stands ranging from $12.50 down to $3.00.

A special rule of the Cleveland Boxing Commission, governing fouls and "near-fouls" will apply at the match. While some additional complications of the rule may be possible, the main points are:

1. A low blow is not a foul. The fighters have agreed to wear appliances to insure complete protection against blows below the belt.

2. If one of the fighters should go to the floor after receiving a low blow, and does not rise before a count of ten, he will be taken to his corner for a maximum rest period of five minutes, after which the bout shall be continued.

3. Should the injured man refuse to continue the fight after rest, in the event the referee deems he really is able to continue, he will lose the fight on a technical knockout and forfeit his entire purse.

4. If the injured man refuses to continue after injury from a low blow, and if the referee agrees he is unable to continue, the bout will be declared "no contest."

5. The fighter who lands a low blow will lose the round in which it is struck and a substantial part of his share in the receipts.

Six preliminary bouts, all involving heavyweights, will precede the fight, with Johnny Risko, the Cleveland rubber-man, meeting Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., in the eight-round semi-final.

The championship battle, scheduled to start between 10 and 10:15 p. m. will precede the Risko-Galento bout. The first preliminary is scheduled to start at 8:15 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Both Confident
Stribling believes he will win the championship by a knockout within five rounds.

Schmeling says he will retain his crown by knocking out Stribling within 10 rounds.

These were the pre-battle state-

"I am in perfect condition," Schmeling said, "and I never felt better in my life. I feel I will win and I will be happy then because I will have proved that I am a real champion. I can not and will not lose. My plan of battle is simple—just to keep punching until I stop him. I am positive he can not knock me out and that is his one chance of winning. Stribling has never faced a man who can hit as hard as I can."

"I have seen Schmeling fight," Stribling said, "and do not underestimate his ability, but I think I can beat him, and that championship looks mighty good to me after 10 years of boxing. I have no set plans for the fight. I have paid no attention to anything they have told me about Schmeling. I'll fight him the way I think best after I get in there. I can tell you one thing. I'll be throwing a lot of punches and putting everything I've got behind them. If I do not win, there will be no alibi. But I am sure I can win decisively."

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD
The Athletics and the Cardinals have held their places at the head of baseball's big parades for the first half of the long march, but they can't afford to do any loitering in the closing stages of the route that is sprinkled with perspiration and base-hits.

When we scanned the "A's" in Florida last winter, the tendency of the veteran infield to creak around the joints was cited. Connie Mack already has had trouble filling the gaps around the inner defense.

It is curious that Washington's Senators, the chief threat to the world's champions, is strongest at the point where the A's are weakest—shortstop.

Joe Cronin, voted the most valuable American league player in 1930, has more than justified this opinion by his great all-round work this year for the Senators. Quite a number of competent observers rate Cronin as more valuable to Washington than any single member of the Athletics' star cast, including Al Simmons, Cochrane, Grove and Earnshaw.

The absence of Cochrane from the A's lineup in June hit the champions at a time when they had enough worries, anyway, trying to patch up the infield.

Where the A's have only Washington to contend with seriously in the pennant chase, the Cardinals must beat off the Giants and Cubs. It is a particularly tough assignment to get anywhere in the National league for the reason that any one of the second division clubs has the power to batter down any opposing club at an opportune or inopportune moment.

One of our better young sports writers having disposed of his duties on the night trick, picked up his bag of sticks and hid himself toward the Moshulu Park public golf course in the Bronx, intent upon teeing off with the dawn.

It was the milkman's hour and our scribe knew he must hurry but he was unprepared for the shock of finding two solid sheets of starting times for the daybreak hours already filled, several hundred golfers in a straggling line and virtually no chance of banging away before breakfast.

I know of no parallels to this sort of thing in any other sport, for this was not an isolated case, either for New York, or for a number of other large cities. It is a daily occurrence.

The public links golfer is the most persistent of the species. He will take punishment that would make the average club player flinch. He will battle his way around, harassed from the rear and the flanks by the s'ching host. He will hit his own ball or one that alights from a neighboring fairway, impartially. It is a hardy clan.

TOURNEY IN AUGUST
Of course there are statistics about this situation. The United States Golf Association has just published a booklet pointing out that whereas there were less than 100 municipally operated links in 1922, a total of 291 functioned in 1930.

The national public links championship, for the trophy donated by James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, first was completed for at Ottawa Park, Toledo, in 1922, when it was won by Eddie Held of St. Louis. Eddie is or has been selling bonds in New York and no longer waits for the dawn to tee off.

This year, August 4-8, the championship tournament will be played at the Keller course, St. Paul, considered one of the best municipal layouts in the country. It was opened only two years ago by the county commissioners. Its 18 holes stretch the championship length of 6,650 yards and par is 72.

The annual operating cost is $19,000 but last year $2,000 rounds, at 75 cents and $1 (the extra 25 cents is for a starting time reservation) brought in over $30,000 in fees.

GOLF IN PLENTY
To get an idea of the proportions of this public links golf business, the records of the U. S. G. A. show more than a score of courses on which anywhere from 100,000 to 225,000 rounds of golf were played in 1930.

Roughly, this means from 300 to 600 rounds per day, where it is possible to play the year-round. In eastern and mid-western cities, it means a higher average, actually, for the snow-birds of the links are not numerous.

Here are the figures:
1. Lincoln, San Francisco... 225,575
2. Jefferson Park, Seattle... 210,245
3. Palmer Park, Detroit... 197,603
4. Harding, San Francisco... 190,224

chance in the standing.

The Browns, who started their campaign at Sportsman Park against the eastern invaders in last place, finished it yesterday a good fifth in the standing while the Chicago White Sox dropped from fifth to eighth in the same time. St. Louis won 13 games and lost five while the White Sox had only five victories to 12 defeats.

The rest of the standing remained about the same with the eastern division pulling slowly ahead. The four eastern clubs pulled out a slight margin of victories, winning 34 games and losing 32. Boston alone fared badly among the invaders, recording only seven victories against nine defeats. Cleveland reversed those figures to become a second western club which got better than an even break at home. Washington, trouncing the Browns 13 to 5 in the final game yesterday, came home all square for the tour with eight victories and as many defeats but lost a game to its rivals, Philadelphia and New York.

The league leading Philadelphia Athletics wobbled a bit toward the end and finished with nine games won and seven lost after absorbing a 12 to 4 beating from Cleveland yesterday. The A's got a four run lead on homers by Fox and Bishop then lost it when the wildness of their pitchers allowed the Indians to score ten times in the sixth and seventh innings. The New York Yankees, aided by Babe Ruth's 19th home run, finished their tour with a 13 to 1 triumph over Detroit. The Yanks won 17 games and lost eight, the second best record of the series while the Tigers had five victories in 15 games.

Tommy Thomas pitched Chicago to a final victory over Boston, holding the Red Sox to three hits while the Pale Hose won 2 to 0.

In the National League, where a double header today between St. Louis and Philadelphia winds up the inter-sectional campaign, the Brooklyn Robins stood out as much as the Browns in their home stand. Outright 10-5 by Cincinnati yesterday, the Robins bunched three doubles for three runs in the sixth inning and defeated the Reds 4 to 3. The victory gave Brooklyn a record of 13 victories in 17 games against the western invaders.

Frank Hogan's home run and some expert fielding behind Fred Fitzsimmons enabled the Giants to reduce the St. Louis lead to 1½ games with a 3 to 2 victory. Hogan clouted his homer with two aboard in the fifth for all the Giant runs. The Chicago Cubs held their place three games behind the Giants by pulling out an eleven inning game with the Phillies by a 2 to 1 count. Bob Smith held the Phils to seven hits while Ray Benge allowed ten, singles by Grimm and Cuyler and Mallon's error in the eleven bringing the deciding tally.

Heinie Meine of Pittsburgh turned in the best mound performance of the many good ones in the National League yesterday as he limited the Boston Braves to five hits to gain a 1 to 0 decision in a duel with Bruce Cunningham. Adam Comorosky brought the only run, single and stealing second, gaining third on an error and scoring on a hit by Howard Grosklos.

Wimbledon, England, July 3.—(UP)—Faulen Cilly Aussem became the first German girl to win the Wimbledon tennis singles championship today when she defeated her countrywoman, Fraulien Hila Krahwinkel, 6-2, 7-5, in the championship finals.

The all-German final marked the first time a German woman had played in the championship round since women's singles play was started at Wimbledon in 1884.
The attractive little German fraulien, a veteran internationalist at the age of 22, succeeded to the championship held for the past four years by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of California and previously won such stars as Mrs. Kathleen McKane Godfree, Miss Suzanne Lenglen and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy.

Mrs. Moody did not defend her championship this year but the field included a wealth of international stars, such as Miss Helen Jacobs, rated second only to Mrs. Moody in American tennis; and Miss Betty Nuthall, England's ranking player and current holder of the United States' women's title.

Reno To Entertain Big Crowd Fourth
Reno, Nevada, July 3.—(AP)—Faulino Uzcudun, the Basque, and Max Baer, rangy Californian, heavyweight principals in Reno's biggest fight in 21 years, took things easy today while on the streets this crowd the city has accommodated since another July 4 in 1910.

Twenty-one years ago tomorrow, Jim Jeffries failed in his comeback attempt to snatch the heavyweight crown back from Jack Johnson. Tomorrow Uzcudun and Baer come together in a 20-round bout of not much consequence, but this town on the eastern slope of the Sierra expects to almost double its population for the day.

Reno, normally of 18,500 population, planned to house the newcomers in "tent cities" and more than a hundred sidetracked Pullman cars.

Uzcudun was the favorite at odds of 10-8.

The fight will start at about 12:30 P. M. Pacific Coast time.

Baer will weigh around 208 pounds to 198 for Paulino. The Californian is 22 years old, Uzcudun is 30.

HALF HUNDRED RACING CRAFTS IN LOWELL MEET

Tomorrow's Outboard Events At Park To Be Of Interest

Secretary Edward Graybill of the Dixon Outboard Club today had received 53 entries for the Fourth of July motor boat races to be held at Lowell Park Saturday. It is expected that about 50 racing craft will be entered before the entry list closes at noon Saturday. The prospect is for the largest entry list and best program of races ever to be held in this locality. It will be the only motor boat racing event held within a radius of 300 miles on the Fourth, which is attracting the heavy entry list. A fine list of prizes has been arranged for the winners in the various events.

The spite race will be held at 10:30 in the morning, in which several entries have already been received. The actual racing program will start at 1:30 in the afternoon with Everett Bacon, State Secretary of the Illinois Outboard Association, officiating as starter. Several of the state and national Outboard officials will be present.

The program in the afternoon will for the Class B race starting at 1:30. The Class C races will start at 2:30. The free-for-all at 3:15, thus assuring a full afternoon of sport.

ation, which opens this afternoon and continues for three days. All races which afternoon will be five times around the Beaumont turning basin which is a measured statute mile. Officials expect 30,000 spectators for the three day meet. There were 10 races for outboards, hydroplanes and runabouts on the first day's card.

The list of entries had not been completed, but officials believed there would be eighty or more boats of all classes.

The weather forecast was "partly cloudy."

American Crews In London Races Lost

Henley-on-Thames, Eng., July 2.—(UP)—Harvard University's third varsity crew and Tabor Academy, only American entrants in the annual Royal Regatta, were eliminated today by London Rowing Club crews.

Harvard, competing for the grand challenge cup, was defeated in the first round by the London Rowing Club crew which won the cup in 1930. The London crew rowed the mile and five-sixteenths course in 7:49 to finish six lengths ahead of the Americans.

London led throughout the race with Harvard rowing poorly and failing to strike a smooth gait.

Tabor Academy, seeking the Thames Challenge Cup won in 1929 by Browne & Nichols school, lost a second round race to London's junior crew. London took the lead at the start and stood off a Tabor challenge in the final quarter-mile to win in 7:42.

WALES PLANS TO COME TO CHICAGO FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Unofficial Sources Report Prince Will Visit The States

BY VIRGIL PINKLEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1931 by United Press)

LONDON—(UP)—The Prince of Wales is expected to visit the United States and the Chicago Exposition in 1933, the United Press has learned.

The visit probably will come as a short break in a lengthy Canadian sojourn.

This is the view of people in authoritative positions. They believe that the Prince's next trip will be to Canada, where he owns large cattle holdings. It has been six years since he visited the United States and his last visit to Canada was made in 1927 when he was accompanied by Prince George and Stanley Baldwin and his wife.

Non-Official Report

While there was no official confirmation of the Prince's proposed trip, official quarters intimated that such a trip was not improbable and that he certainly will visit Canada soon.

It is understood that Wales will receive an official invitation to attend the Chicago Exposition and that Ambassador Chas. G. Dawes will probably extend the invitation. Ambassador Dawes and the Prince of Wales are close friends.

During the past year the Prince of Wales has said on several occasions that he would like to visit the United States again.

Canadian Trip

A trip to Canada would, no doubt, result in increased British Empire good will and a visit to the United States would strengthen the ever-growing closeness between Britain and the United States on great world problems.

The Prince of Wales has now completed his world tour and the geographical closeness of Canada makes it an ideal part of the overseas empire to visit.

Since the Prince's return from his Latin-American tour there has been a press campaign for semi-official talk about the Prince of Wales having taken his last trip abroad. Edward P. likes to travel and he has no binding ties at the moment.

PLAN ROUNDTABLE MEET

New York—(UP)—The New York offices of the National Conference of Jews and Christians have announced that the conference will hold roundtables of Protestants, Catholics and Jews at Washington, D. C., next February 2 and 3, at which 500 leaders will meet for discussion of important present day religious problems.

The Washington Seminar will convene with the objective of focusing consideration upon the dissolving of racial prejudices which influence economic, social and civic relations in the United States. Also, the Seminar will attempt to formulate a mutual understanding between the religious and cultural groups of the United States.

PITTSBURGH KNOT-HOLE

GANG FIND NEW SEATS

Pittsburgh—(UP)—There are no more knot-hole spectators at Forbes Field, home of the Pirates, but the Cathedral of Learning, now being constructed, will provide plenty of worry for Earnest Dreyfus.

The Cathedral is 500 feet high and has 38 floors. The view from its top to the Forbes Field ball park is better than from any of the knot holes plugged up to prevent non-paying fans from seeing games.

Heart of Liane

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LIANE BARRETT, 18 and beautiful, lives in a cramped New York apartment with her mother, CASS BARRETT, a rather faded actress. On a hot night Liane goes to dinner with MOLLY CRONIN, a neighbor, and two of Molly's men friends. There is a shooting and the girl is held as a witness. She sends a note to her mother who arrives and persuades SHANE McDERMID, the young policeman, in charge, that Liane is innocent of wrongdoing. That night at the theater where Cass is playing Liane encounters a handsome stranger who speaks her name.

A few days later Cass and Liane go to Willow Stream, N. J., where Cass has an engagement in a small summer theater sponsored by wealthy MRS. CLESPATCH, a widow with one son, CLIVE. Liane works in the box office, sharing duties with MURIEL LADD, pretty society girl. At Muriel's home Liane again meets the handsome stranger who speaks to her in the theater. He is VAN ROHARD, but when she speaks of him to Cass her mother makes Liane promise never to have anything more to do with him.

Mrs. Clespatch asks Cass to let Liane stay with her during the winter. Muriel leaves the theater one evening with CHUCK DESMOND, newspaper man, and Muriel's mother, believing the two have eloped, asks Rohard to find them. Van Rohard, Liane's aid, tells her Rohard is said to be Mrs. Ladd's lover. Muriel telephones next day from a New York hotel where she has spent the night discreetly. Liane tries to force Rohard, Muriel flirts with CERTAIN BLUE, stage star. Liane dines with Desmond and finds him interesting.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

CHUCK DESMOND could be an entertaining dinner companion. Having summoned a taxi he handed Liane in with a flourish and demanded to be driven to Wishwaters, the sea-front palace down on the shore. He promised Cass he would have her daughter home in good time for her evening appearance at the theater.

"Muriel will—well, she'll crown me for this," Liane said, laughing, as they sat over their coffee. Desmond lifted an interrogative eyebrow. "Says which?"

"Oh, all this!" Liane indicated the dancing floor, mirrored and smooth, on which a few early couples were even now executing slow, snail-like steps. The tented top sparkled with lights. Cars were beginning to buzz into the drive, their wheels crunching on the gravel outside.

Desmond regarded his cup indifferently. "Nice girl, Muriel, but thoughtless," he observed drily. "You were pretty sweet to come with me on a last minute bid."

"I was delighted," Liane told him. She meant it.

"Well, it was my luck. No fooling. I do hate to hang on the nosebag when I'm alone. There's genius for you!"

"He's not bad looking really," Liane summed up her companion. Entirely she overlooked the charms of this devil-may-care young man in the rather noisy suit.

"I'll be seeing you," Chuck Desmond said, patting her hand as the taxi drew up at the theater.

Desmond told the driver to hot-foot it for the station. He would just have time to make the first act of "The Frolic." Well, his evening hadn't been wasted entirely.

ELISE wanted to know, "Who's the new boy friend?"

Liane said demurely, "My mother used to know his mother."

"Oh, that bologna!" Elsie told interest. She went on, "Dye know, I'm kind of sorry we're checking out of here next month. I've got to the smell of new mown hay mixed with my carbon monoxide and I'll miss it. Still, there's nothing like September 1 in Times Square. There's a feeling in the air—oh, I don't know—as if something were just about to happen. Something big."

"I know just what you mean but it seldom does happen."

"Never can tell," Elsie winked elaborately. "Believe it or not, there are plots hatching around here that don't meet the eye."

Liane, thinking of her adventure that afternoon, shivered a little. Elsie, not noticing, continued, "That Muriel girl, for instance. Is she a fast worker? Believe it or not, she has little Boy Blue eating out of her hand. Wait till the scandal columns get hold of that. Which Junior League is that way about what drama star?"

"She only met him this afternoon," Liane protested.

"Yes, I know. But what that dame does with 24 hours is nobody's business," said the cynical Elsie. "Mrs. Blue's little boy may be hooked before he knows it. He's not used to these high-powered debutantes. I don't mind," she explained, "if she'll lay off my Clive. But Muriel's a natural born poacher, and if she thought she could burn me up by going for him, she would."

Liane had heard a great deal of this in the past so she lent a mildly inattentive ear. "I wouldn't worry," she said, absently. "Yes, Mrs. Gridley, of course I've got your tickets ready."

Elsie took the hint and drifted along in the direction of her dressing room.

"Muriel's supposed to be helping me tonight. What a fake she is as a working girl," Liane grumbled resentfully to herself as she smiled her set smile, punched tickets and made change. "Poor little rich girl, playing at being useful, that's what she is." Muriel's role of box office assistant had been mostly a picturesque fiction. She appeared late and left early. She never allowed business to interfere with to a draw.

Photostatic copies of documents hundreds of years old were introduced by Duane E. Miller, Assistant Attorney General of New Jersey. The originals, among which was a copy of the grant of southern New Jersey to the Duke of York, repose in the vaults of the New Jersey Historical Society at Trenton.

pleasure. Liane couldn't help being resentful. The work meant bread and butter to her. She could not afford to shirk.

The little coop grew stifling as the evening wore on. Liane sat stiff and watchful, smiling her professional smile at the late comers, the women all smartly crapped and heavily scented in their frill chignons. When the doors flew open at the intermission she caught a glimpse of a dark, lowering face above a dazzling shirfront. Van Rohard! He did not even glance toward Liane. The girl with him was small, lusciously blond. Her black frock was daintily cut away at the back to show a rounded pair of golden shoulders. She talked animatedly, a cigaret dangling from the corner of her geranium-stained mouth. She looked bored and exotic.

Liane's heart was beating so rapidly it almost stifled her. Of course he must know she was there but he wouldn't even look at her. What a fool she was to mind! Oh, she hated him, she hated him! Liane had a sudden wild longing for green fields and cool dark places where she could bury her face in long grass and weep long and satisfyingly, unheard.

Instead she had to sit there, passive, immobile, in her old gray dress, feeling like a shadow on the edge of the pretty, painted throng.

How she envied all these young girls at Willow Stream. They had everything—money, fame, that vaulted and elusive thing called background. They could reach out and take what they wanted in their greedy little jeweled hands with the nicotine-stained fingers. No matter what they desired, a star sapphire, a trip to Europe, a handsome husband, there was almost always some adoring male to get it for them. What did they know of striving, of heartbreak? What did they know of saving up for a win ter coat, wearing some friend's castoff shoes? No, they had their little ermine wraps, their half a hundred Paris frocks, their perfumes, their horses and their planes. No wonder when a fascinating man looked about for a girl to admire he chose one of them. They were so petted, so admired. They had a nimbus of glamour about them. The Cinderellas of the world hadn't a chance beside such rivals.

She put her head down to hide the rush of tears that threatened to come.

A shadow fell across the book in front of her. "Don't move. Don't say a word," warned a menacing voice. "Slide up that window and give me the cash!"

The startled girl looked up into somber eyes under a pulled-down cap. Trembling she obeyed. Her fascinated gaze watching the blue barrel of the gun he leveled at her. There was an electric tensity in the little foyer. Two other men, both armed, stood in the doorway. "You people, give us all you've got," commanded one. The women, whimpering,

ZAMORA

A Nation At The Cross Roads Of History—

SPAIN TODAY

EX-KING
ALFONSO

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of exclusive stories by Milton Bronner, European manager for NEA Service and The Telegraph, who has just toured Spain. The series is very timely in view of the fact that a constitutional convention to set up a form of government for the world's newest republic will convene at Madrid on July 14.

By MILTON BRONNER
European Manager NEA Service
Madrid —(NEA Service)— The three most interesting and powerful men in Spain today are two politicians and a famous aviator.

The politicians—or statesmen—are Alcalá Zamora, president of the republic and Colonel Francisco Macia, president of the four provinces that constitute Catalonia.

The aviator is Major Ramon Franco, mystery man of the revolution, who has been referred to by some as "the Spanish Lenin."

President Zamora has established his official residence in a large building in Madrid which formerly was occupied by a relative of ex-King Alfonso.

Here at 1:15 each day he receives the press—the only ruler in Europe who does so. He stands in a formal room whose walls still bear paintings of members of the Bourbon-Hapsburg royal family. He wears a dark blue suit that needs pressing badly, sports a soft white collar, and confesses that he has been too busy to get shaved.

To the foreign reporters present he addresses a plea for fairness to the republican government. He explains that in a recent riot two people were killed—but declares the dispatches printed in foreign papers said that 102 had been killed and hundreds more injured. He protests that this injures all business, scares tourists away and hurts the reputation of the new republic.

Interviewing a President
I called on President Zamora with the other correspondents. He noticed a strange face, and somebody told him I was an American.

"North or South?" President Zamora asks, as he shakes hands.

"North," I reply.

"Welcome, North!" he smiles as he sits down.

One must remember that to a Spaniard there are always two Americas.

President Zamora, after a polite explanation, first addresses the Spanish newspaper reporters in their language. Then he turns and addresses the foreign journalists in fluent French.

This tired-looking man, who is reputed to work 18 hours a day at his new job, is very human. The day I called on him there were also two Italian journalists present.

"For years I have admired the works of your great writer, Manzoni," President Zamora tells them. "I once wrote an essay on him, perhaps you would like to read it some time."

He fumbles among the papers in his desk and finds some pamphlets.

The Italians are tickled pink. And President Zamora goes back to his private office to wrestle with the problems of a new-born republic.

Leader of the Catalans

From Colonel Macia, who has his headquarters in Barcelona, and is president of Catalonia, the visitor gets an impassioned exposition of the spirit of the revolution, especially as it affects his own Catalans.

"For many long years," he told me, "the Catalans have been fighting to be masters of their own house. Within the frame of the Spanish republic, but retaining our own vision of autonomy, we expect to present a complete Catalan constitution to the Cortes (the Spanish parliament)."

He outlined his program briefly. It called for great advances in education and equal opportunity for the people.

A foe of the monarchy since 1905, President Macia has a tremendous following.

Major Franco is a man of mystery. In Madrid it is whispered that this fiery aviator is totally dissatisfied with the way in which the revolutionary government has been acting, and says that he is only biding his time to foment a new uprising which will bring a new and more radical group into power.

Because of his fame, his daring revolutionary activities of a few years ago—he flew over the royal palace, dropped revolutionary pamphlets and had to scot off for Portugal, with a squadron of army pursuit planes chasing him—and his tremendous popularity, Major Franco is a factor to reckon with.

Franco's Reply to Critics

I asked him to tell me something about himself.

"I do not think of myself as a hero," he said with a smile. "The only hero in this piece is the great Spanish people, which said it had had enough of kings and monarchistic trappings, mismanagement and graft."

"Please get this clear: I am not a politician, but in politics I am a radical socialist. I want to see the constitution written on the broadest, most liberal, most tolerant lines. I want to see the common people given their chance."

"Also, I want to build up Spain's army air force, and do my best to develop commercial aviation. Distances are great in Spain, and trains are slow. It is very important that our chief cities be linked up with airplanes."

"That is my program. If there is any Leninism in that, make the most of it."

Just recently he was elected to the constitutional convention that is to meet on July 14, to frame a new constitution for the new republic and thus it appears he is still to play an active part in public affairs, although no longer identified with the present government.

excursions or trips to the movies, etc.

That was two years ago. Today, the income of the same family is 160 marks, as compared to 200 in 1929. Instead of having 150 marks left after rent, taxes and social insurances are paid, the worker now starts the month with only 110 marks to pay for food, clothing, recreation and transportation.

As before the home of the working man which has two rooms and a kitchen is considered something of a luxury. A recent trade union inquiry into how the laborers wife lives, showed a grey picture of millions of women whose entire time and energy is consumed in household drudgery. A questionnaire of the textile union brought the following statement from thousands of women:

"We want no children."

The young workers devote their leisure time chiefly to sports, while many of the older city laborers own tiny truck gardens in which they raise a few vegetables and also find recreation. The typical industrial worker is a stay-at-home. He goes to the movies on an average of once a month, partly because he has no money to go offener and partly because the radio has revolutionized his mode of diversion and recreation.

Some 4,000,000 employees are in a slightly better position, but 1,500,000 members of the middle-class in Germany remain and they—according to the trade union statistics—are on a lower scale economically than the manual laborers.

They are professional folk, rentiers, pensioners, small shop keepers, and others who lost their savings during the inflation of the mark and are now completely uprooted and adrift.

It is among this class that the Fascist and Communists are most active. And they get a good response. These families provide fertile soil for recruits to extremist causes. For instance, the urban residential districts are smeared with "for rent" signs, mostly on large apartments which formerly were occupied by well-to-do families. It is with a sense of humiliation that they sub-let their once lovely apartments for anything they can get.

The German farmer, whose predicament was described in the fourth article of this series, is continuing to seek relief from today's and tomorrow's privations, by mortgaging his future.

The End

THREE OF CHIEFS
OF UNITED STATES
DIED ON JULY 4thJohn Adams, Thos. Jefferson and James Monroe
Died On Holiday

One historic fact relating to July 4 is seldom remembered in our usual observance of Independence Day, according to the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. This is especially strange because this historic fact has touching and dramatic meaning. July 4 is the day on which three Presidents of the United States died. Each of these three early Presidents played a prominent part in the very formation of our government, and each received, as a reward from the people, elevation to their highest office. Having performed great labors in planning the theory of our government, it fell to their lot to set noble examples in putting the theory into practical effect.

These three Presidents were John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe. Indeed, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died almost at the same hour on July fourth, 1826. After many sharp differences of opinion, which had divided them during a part of their lives, Adams and Jefferson became not only reconciled but closely attached friends. The correspondence of their final years is one of the glories of American letters. Adams lived to be ninety, Jefferson eighty-three. Neither knew how close to death was the other, and Adams' last words, when conscious that death was near, are said to have been, "Thomas Jefferson still lives." But Thomas Jefferson was already dead.

Before their Presidency, both these great men served as Vice President, and one of them as Vice President while the other was President. The older man, John Adams, was Vice President under George Washington himself. All three were closely associated with Washington during our formative days, and to one of them, John Adams, goes the credit for playing a major part in throwing George Washington into the arms of destiny.

It was largely the action of John Adams that led the Continental Congress to appoint George Washington as commander-in-chief of the Revolutionary forces. Before that time Washington had been an outstanding sectional figure, a man of the South. In command of the Continental forces, he became a man of the country, and history knows full well how he played the part.

James Monroe, a younger man, appeared on the scene of action after the great political groundwork of founding the nation had been accomplished. But as a young man he played a gallant part in the field of battle, as a follower of Washington.

Strange to say, he at first opposed the Constitution of the United States, and as a member of the Virginia Convention, elected to act on adoption of the Constitution, he voted against it. Yet he lived to become the President who enunciated a Doctrine that statesmen regard as no less a settled rule of American policy than the Constitution itself. James Monroe died July 4, 1831, but the "Monroe Doctrine" is immortal.

The older men, Adams and Jefferson, are forever linked with George Washington as leaders in the movement that made America independent. Washington was distinctly the man of action, the soldier, the director of affairs, and without him the Revolution might never have moved to victory. But just as necessary were the philosophy of Jefferson in shaping our principles of government, and the abilities of Adams in waking and training popular opinion, a labor in which he had few peers. Both Adams and Jefferson served on the committee to draft the Declaration of Independence. Both signed the Declaration, and to one of them, Thomas Jefferson, belongs the immortal honor of having written that timeless instrument.

In spite of their passing differences, these two giants of intellect and manhood were partners through out their lives, in one of the greatest achievements for the progress of humanity. On the very birthday of the new charter they had brought to mankind, when the entire nation was celebrating its 50th anniversary, they died, within a few hours of each other. Had they been allowed to select the day of their passing, neither could have picked one more to his liking, or more fitting to the record they have left on American history.

As Independence Day is celebrated this year, the American people should spare a thought of two to this striking historic fact. In honoring the day as the beginnings of their liberties and privileges, they should also honor the memories of these three men who died, full of years and full of honors, on this birthday of a government that has enriched the records of the past as it has enriched the lives of a living people.

GERMANY'S ECONOMIC CRISIS

Frederick Kuh, United Press European Manager, Tells of Condition Which Prompted Hoover's Debt Holiday Proposal.

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1931, By United Press.)
Berlin, July 3 —(UP)— "How do you expect them to live?" asked Chancellor Bruening, with a hopeless gesture, referring to Germany's millions of unemployed and their dependents.

The answer is a puzzle to sociologists, and is one of the things that President Hoover's war debt plan is intended to solve.

The Chancellor was talking with the correspondent, describing the misery of the 4,000,000 unemployed out of Germany's population of 60,000,000, with their estimated 800,000 dependents—one-fifth of the population.

He pointed out that many of the unemployed men and women are the mainstays of families and are forced to rely solely on the dole or insurance relief of 50 to 70 marks monthly—$11.50 to $16.60.

A visit to the unemployment offices, where the dole seekers stand in queues, revealed that although penniless, many were still neatly dressed. Yet they wore their entire fortunes on their backs.

Many of them were of a once-prosperous middle-class. They had tasted the joys of better living during Germany's brief post-war prosperity. They had passed through the hectic days when marks were a riddle, a bushel, back to the days of sanity, and then seen their savings melt away and their jobs disappear.

Some rely on trades unions for aid in their emergency, but with an average income of two marks, or less than 50 cents daily, they live with slightly better off relatives or neighbors, or in some cases are still able to squeeze out credit for rent and grocery bills.

At present every third German industrial worker is without a job—enough to raise a critical situation by itself. A trade union federation investigation revealed that in 1929 the normal budget of the employed, skilled laborer's family included a net income averaging 200 marks (about $48 a month, of which the head of the family earned 150 marks and the wife and children combined contributed 50 marks).

The family with 200 marks to spend for the month had to plan with great care to spread it over rent, taxes, social insurance and the other items, including any amusement which they would seek.

They usually did it something like this:—thirty marks went for rent, taxes and 20 marks for social insurance—the latter providing for the grave danger of unemployment. The family needs 110 marks, or just about $26 for food for a month, and 25 marks for clothes. The remaining 15 marks had to be stretched out to cover household utensils, repairs, car fare, tobacco, and any pleasure

Lawsonia Country Club was built, furnished, and landscaped at a cost of nearly two million dollars. All rooms are equipped with twin beds, combination tub and shower, circulating ice water, and the Hotel is strictly modern and fireproof in every detail.

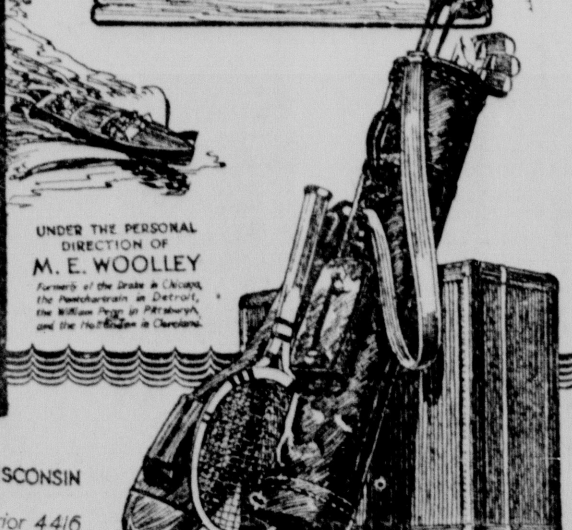

Lawsonia is an architectural jewel in the center of a setting of 1200 acres, formerly the private estate of Victor E. Lawson, the late millionaire publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

Within these private grounds are 22 miles of paved roads, Lawsonia's own 18-hole golf course, which is one of the sportiest in all America, there is a large outdoor swimming pool, as well as a smaller wading pool for children. Guests may enjoy motor boating, yachting, horseback riding, tennis, or fishing with expert guides in a privacy and picturesque setting beyond compare.

A famous orchestra furnishes music for luncheon and dinner, and for evening dancing. Indoor as well as outdoor dining rooms, and special club rooms for parties. Catering only to the highest type clientele with special accommodations for chauffeurs and moids.

Green Lake, Wisconsin is 35 miles West of Fond du Lac and Oshkosh, and a short four hours motor trip from Chicago. On the Northwestern Railroad. Five automobile highways from anywhere in the Middle West.
